Tube Southeast Asia 2017:

- A key forum to leverage on upcoming trends in Southeast Asia's tube & pipe industries
- Trade-focused setting to learn about the latest innovations and gain first-hand industry knowledge

6 February 2017 – Tube Southeast Asia 2017 returns to the Bangkok Trade & Exhibition Centre (BITEC), Bangkok, Thailand from 19 – 21 September with its 11th edition. The biennially-held specialist trade fair, staged alongside wire Southeast Asia 2017, comes amidst heightened prospects expected for the tube and pipe industries.

Growing infrastructure needs in developing countries spurs demand for pipes

According to recent report by Global Industry Analysts, Inc., the global market for pipes and pipe/host fittings is projected to reach US$320 billion by 2020, driven by the growing focus on infrastructure development in developing countries. Asia-Pacific, in particular, is set to register a 6.3% CAGR as the largest and fastest growing market in the world.

Pipes and tubes form the structural foundation of water, fuel and gas distribution infrastructure, and are therefore influenced by the economic dynamics experienced in construction, agricultural spending, highway spending, natural gas exploration, and consumer goods manufacture. Such as, in light of expanding oil & natural gas exploration, drilling and production activities, demand for high-end seamless pipes is forecast to grow strongly due to the surge in unconventional drilling procedures. Likewise, the robust growth of Asia's energy and petrochemical markets will call for greater demand of steel pipes and tubes, since distribution of oil and natural gas requires steel pipelines. OCTG (oil country tubular goods) and line pipes are thus expected to witness strong growth. Technological advancements and manufacturing processes have also boosted the popularity and acceptance of multilayer plastic pipes (MP) especially in the installation of marine and mining pipelines. In addition, the adoption of trenchless installation of pipelines will offer productive opportunities for large diameter plastic pipes.

Comprehensive exhibit profile tailored to industry trends and movements

Reflecting the established credentials of the world's leading trade fair, Tube – the International Tube Fair, and supported by the International Tube Association, Tube Southeast Asia 2017 will present technology highlights for the tube, pipe and related industries.

The dynamic line-up at Tube Southeast Asia 2017 will feature an all-encompassing range of innovative machinery in tube and pipe manufacturing and processing, ferrous and non-ferrous tubes, new processes in measuring, control and test engineering and specialist areas, as well as new and upgraded tools and auxiliary materials.

- Tube and pipe manufacturing and processing machinery
- Tool making and in-plant transport machines
- Used machinery
- Tools, auxiliary materials
- Iron, steel, stainless steel and non-ferrous tubes and accessories
- Other tubes (including concrete, plastic, stoneware, etc.)
- Measuring and control technology

Debut of Tube & Pipe Industry Development Seminar at Tube Southeast Asia 2017

Augmenting the expansive product range on the show floor is the inaugural Tube & Pipe Industry Development Seminar organised by the International Tube Association. The seminar calls for exhibitors of Tube Southeast Asia 2017 to submit an abstract that focuses on technical/economical classifications, new technologies, modernisation, R&D or recent case studies that would increase the competitiveness of the business against the current industry climate. Each submitted proposal will be considered by the association's technical committee.
